

The Road to Freedom
by

The road to freedom; make me feel so sad, when I should really be glad.

The road to freedom; is sometimes a lonely road, like the spoken word just waiting to be told.

The road to freedom; a chance we must all take, if not for ourselves, at least for the children sake.

The road to freedom; is not popular with those whom are slaves, it's definitely despise by those whom used to live in caves.

The road to freedom; is more than the underground railroad, this is our land and it belongs to the indigenous ones, as it has long ago been told.

The road to freedom; has bless us with many revolutionaries & freedom fighters, but what this road needs now is lot's of organizers.

The road to freedom; is travel by many and all, however many are chosen and few are call.

The road to freedom; is not like a walk in the park, we must learn to fight and never give up even in the dark.

The road to freedom; has no room for those whom sell us out, that why we step over them to continue our objective without a doubt.

The road to freedom; has to have our total focus at all times, we can no longer afford to lose any more battles in this post-millennium prime.

The road to freedom; is a road open to all, however melaninated people are the chosen ones who must carry the ball.

The road to freedom; is all about the overall trust in us, the total objective is Love, Truth, Peace & Justice.
