

Time & Money
by

We've heard these terms most of our lives; never questioning or reasoning these words in our hearts & minds.

The essence of time and the value of how we use it; versus money which is unreal and carries no value no matter how its attain or how we use it.

Money takes time in order for us to strive in life; time does not need money for you to exist and its has no price.

The focus on money creates a lack of your value time; the focus on time creates a love supreme that's very divine.

What does it matter, if time is money; how does it matter, if imaginary currency is not worth your precious time, isn't that funny.

In order to have money, you must give up voluntary or involuntary your valuable time & energy; that alone within your inner self is not worthy of your precious synergy.

Money does extend your time on this physical & spiritual plane; time helps you appreciate the total concept of the moment that always change.

When there is no more money in your procession nor in a bank; time continues on regardless of your false net worth or class status rank.

If money is considered as wealth and time is infinity; which would you choose to as your livity.

Riddle me this; it money a byproduct of time or is time a byproduct of money?

Remember, time is real and money is unreal.
