As I look around the Americas and reflect on the conditions of the Indigenous ones today.

I've notice a new awaking rousing up in some of us, however not all of us are into the inner or over standing of our situation at bay.

Most of the movements towards keeping Indigenous people off their birthright home land is still the long standing strategy at play.

The Indigenous one are beginning to embrace their roots of who they are in the Land of Gondula (Turtle Island/The Americas) in every way.

As kingdom rise, as kingdom fall.

The indigenous one are starting to stand up right and tall.

With all truth, that has been flourishing has now risen.

The Indigenous one mindset is no longer a prison.

The war of our future is still at hand.

The only solution is still to take back the Indigenous ones home land.

All those's who have oversubscribed the Indigenous people out.

Have been expose and are in great danger without a doubt.

However, the struggle of war continues on.

Until we have the skills set to completely plan & organize our mind revolution, our freedom can be won.
