

When Music Dies
by YahZion EL

We are witnessing the greatest time of artist & musicians passing on by.

Who will pickup where they left off or will the music just die.

This generation has no overstanding of their pure musical root.

That why they all want to sample & rap, but true musicianship remains totally moot.

You don't need a big or small time record company to sign a slave contract anymore.

With the advent of technology, your musical destiny is now a open door.

It used to be a time when musical creatively and song was about changing the times.

Now, its about saying nothing and letting the beats shake your behinds.

Who will it be now, with musical talent get back to the root of music left far behind.

Those sweet, sweet, melodies that penetrate the soul and brought pleasure to your mind.

Where are true artists and musicians? We need them in this sign of the times.

We need your beautiful lyrics and melody music now, for the world is desperately changing in this transformation of signs.
